Comments: Diggy was quite the acrobat being found one time walking along the top rail of a six foot fence. He was an excellent escape artist. He was small, not 17 inches. Somewhat bowed in front legs, not good moving toward you. It may have been an affect of deficiency due to being weaned so young. Lovely head, profuse fine wrinkle, fine skin, short coat and a very sweet but demanding personality.

Overall the litter was very nice except the red male was too large. There was not much white on the puppies. All temperaments were a bit shy, not confident however they were not dog aggressive. All are healthy at eight years old. The brindle girls Dilly and Dally were twins, born in the same sack and great fun to show as a brace. One of the twins was bred to another half-African and there were many deformities however it is not known if they were inherited or environmental. The red female was bred to a non-African and had healthy puppies.
